TRAINING AGREEMENT – TERMS AND CONDITIONS

All prospective candidates are to read and sign acceptance of the following terms and conditions:

IRATA rope access courses are physically demanding and require a good level of fitness and suitable strength to weight ratios

The course includes a large theoretical knowledge component and all material is supplied in English. Thus prospective candidates must have a high school proficiency level of reading and speaking English in order to complete the course.

Acceptance onto the course and training with the company does not guarantee a successful outcome. This may only be achieved if the candidate is able to complete all physical lessons and the theoretical studying requirements made of him or her during the training period and successfully completing the independent assessment to the satisfaction of the independent assessor. If for physical reasons the candidate is unable to complete the course he can be booked on another course and such training will be charged for.

The company trainer will make informed decisions regarding your performance during the training period and may decline your participation in assessment if he feels that you are not sufficiently prepared for assessment at the end of the training period.

The following could apply:

1. The trainer declines your eligibility to proceed to assessment in the initial training period. An additional period of training time shall be recommended to you, which shall be offered at a suitable later time and charged at discounted rates to you in order to assist you in preparing for a future assessment date.
2. A candidate, who is not permitted to continue with training or assessment at all, will be refunded the costs of the assessor and registrations fees only.
3. Candidates who are allowed to proceed with assessment and are unfortunate to fail the assessment shall be debriefed by the assessor and trainer as to the additional requirements that need to be undertaken in order to re-assess at a later date.
 Additional training time will be charged at discounted rates.

Candidates that do not accept the trainer’s recommendations and proceed with assessment shall in the event of their failure have no recourse against the company or the trainer.

This document must be signed and submitted to the company with your application form in order to be accepted on the course.

I,have read and understood the terms and conditions of undertaking the IRATA rope Access course and agree to abide by the conditions contained herein.
